Working with GLES Data

The German Longitudinal Election Study (GLES) is the central infrastructure project in Germany for the continuous collection and provision of high-quality data for national and international election research. The methodologically diverse surveys of the GLES enable the research of political attitudes and behavior of voters and candidates. Since its inception, the GLES has been conducted in close cooperation between the German Society for Electoral Research (DGfW) and GESIS – Leibniz Institute for the Social Sciences. More information is available here: www.gles.eu

In order to provide high quality datasets, we appreciate your help. If you discover an error whilst working with GLES data, we would highly appreciate if you would inform us via e-mail (gles@gesis.org). Please send us a description of the error, the study number (ZA-number), as well as the version number of the dataset you are using.

We recommend always using the latest version of GLES data. Information on data access can be found on the GLES website (www.gles-en.eu/download-data) or directly via <https://search.gesis.org/>. News about data releases can also be obtained from the GLES website, the GLES newsletter, or Twitter.

Add Your Publication to the GLES Data Bibliography

To gain an overview of the use of the data, we kindly request users of GLES data to inform us about publications that utilize those data (bibliographic information, study no. of the dataset).

Publications that are completely or partially based on GLES data will be listed in the official bibliography of GLES. In case of limited access to the publication (e.g., conference papers), we would highly appreciate it if you sent us a PDF-file or a print copy of your publication.

2. Study Conception

2.1 Background

The German Longitudinal Election Study (GLES) is the central scientific survey program in Germany for the continuous collection and provision of high-quality data for national and international election research. The methodologically diverse surveys of GLES make it possible to investigate the political attitudes and behaviors of (potential) voters and candidates. GLES has been carried out in close cooperation between the German Society for Electoral Studies (DGfW) and GESIS - Leibniz Institute for the Social Sciences. For more information, see www.gles.eu.

The GLES Cross-Section 2021 consists of the GLES Pre-Election and Post-Election Cross-Section, which is conducted in the four weeks before and eight weeks after the Bundestag election. For the first time, self-administered surveys were conducted online (CAWI) and in paper (PAPI) for the federal election in 2021. People are randomly selected and interviewed.

The GLES cross-section has a long tradition. Since 1994, comparable cross-sectional surveys have been available to election researchers, so that longitudinal studies using these data are easily possible. Furthermore, the cross-sectional data have been transferred to the so-called long-term panel since 1994. This also makes it possible to examine intra-individual changes. Since the cross-sections include a large number of questions, the background to voting decisions and participation in elections can be analysed in depth. Due to the large number of cases, it is also possible to conduct meaningful analyses of subgroups of the electorate. The oversampling of respondents from East Germany also allows for East-West analyses.

2.2 Structure of the Study

Although the questionnaires of the pre- and post-election cross-sections differ, the question program is closely coordinated, which is why the datasets can be provided in both individual and cumulative form. However, the question program also differs in parts. In addition to time constraints, this is due to the fact that the post-election cross-section is connectable to the Comparative Study of Electoral Systems (CSES) and corresponding question program adjustments are made. The present study description refers to the post-election cross-section.

2.3 Content of the Study

The content of the study is the observation and analysis of the attitudes, opinions and behaviour of both voters and non-voters. The questionnaire of the post-election study deals with the following topics:

- Voter turnout & decision
- Political interest
- Satisfaction with democracy
- Economic situation
- Psychological constructs
- Party ratings
- Populist attitudes
- Positions on political issues
- Specific attitudes towards Corona politics
- Corona infections in one's own environment as well as one's own affectedness
- Subjective detachment
- Questions on social justice
- Party and candidate contacts in the election campaign
- Leading candidates, candidates for chancellor & candidates from constituencies (names of candidates from CDU/CSU, SPD, FDP, DIE LINKE, Bündnis 90/Die Grünen and AfD included in questionnaire)
- Political knowledge
- Performance evaluation of government and opposition
- Unconventional participation - offline and online
- Media use incl. social media
- Attitudes towards minorities
- Attitudes towards different social groups
- National identity
- Representation of interests (organisations, parties, politicians)
- Socio-demographics including occupational activities
- Living environment of the respondents

In addition to the information on content, further information is provided (e.g., geographical context information and time stamps per screen page for CAWI respondents).

3. Sampling

3.1 Geographic Coverage

Germany (DE)

3.2 Universe

The population for the GLES cross-sectional survey is persons with German citizenship aged 16 and older, registered in the Federal Republic of Germany at their place of primary residence.

3.3 Selection Method

Multi-stage register sample, oversampling of East Germany.

In the first stage, a sample of municipalities is drawn, among which the given 162 sample points (108 sample points in West Germany and 54 sample points in East Germany) are distributed.

In the second stage, the drawn municipalities are asked to provide a random sample of persons belonging to the population. Municipalities that account for more than one sample point must provide correspondingly more addresses. In the third stage of sampling, the sample of persons is drawn by the implementing institute from the addresses provided by the municipalities.

The sampling at the municipal level was combined for the pre-election and post-election surveys. The study design envisages conducting both sub-studies, the pre-and post-election survey, in the same sample points. Before the sample of persons is drawn, the addresses received from the municipalities are randomly distributed for use in one of the two studies.

4. Data Collection

4.1 Data Collector

Kantar Public Germany

4.2 Mode of Data Collection

Cross-sectional survey in mixed-mode design: online interviews (CAWI) and paper-and-pencil interviews (PAPI), interview invitations by mail and two postal reminders.

The invitations were sent on 24.09.2021 and up to two postal reminders followed if no participation was recorded by the time the reminders were sent.

There was a prepaid incentive of 5 euros.

Respondents were not assigned to a particular mode in advance. Instead, both modes were equally available to all respondents. To direct as many respondents as possible to the CAWI mode, a push-to-web design with online link was sent along with the invitation and the first reminder for respondents 69 years old or younger. The paper questionnaire was sent along only with the second reminder. For those over 70, the same push-to-web design was followed, but a paper questionnaire was sent along with the first invitation. A paper questionnaire was sent again along with the second reminder.

4.3 Interview Duration

The CAWI version had a mean duration of 79.64 minutes (arithmetic mean) and 61.07 minutes (median). The PAPI version had a mean duration of 116.45 minutes (arithmetic mean) and 90 minutes (median).

5. Data Processing and Enrichment

5.1 Preliminary Note

The processing of the data follows the directive of minimal invasive editing. It was done based on syntax files. It is therefore possible to reproduce all steps.

5.2 Data Checks and Editing

All data are carefully checked after data collection has been finished. This includes checking whether all of the variables are included in the dataset, the correctness of variable names and labels, the completeness of value labels, the coding of missing values, and the marginal distributions. These data checks are supplemented by the use of the freely available Stata module scandata (Kaukal 2016), which examines the variables in a dataset on the basis of given specifications regarding the use of capital letters or mutated vowels, length of variable names and labels, or odd distributions. It indicates deviations from these specifications and - if requested by the user - automatically corrects them. In addition, a technical check of the question routing is carried out as well as plausibility checks.

All errors found during these checks are documented and corrected (see 6.1 Errata of the Dataset). If errors occurred which could not be corrected, the error code -92 “error in data” applies.

Despite a thorough examination of the data, errors in the data records might remain undetected. If these are discovered at a later point in time, they are documented in the list of errata in the GESIS search (https://search.gesis.org/research_data/ZA7701) and corrected as soon as possible.

5.3 Coding

The coding mirrors the information given in the questionnaire. If information is summarized or not published for data protection reasons, this is indicated in Table 5 "Overview of data protection-sensitive variables".

If errors in the data could not be corrected at this stage of data processing, the scales were recoded to "-92 error in data" or - if the entire sample was affected - the variables were not published.

In the full release (dataset version v2.0.0), coded data were included in the dataset in addition to individual open-ended information. These include, first, variables q60a1-f1 on the question "Constituency Candidates: Familiarity", which were coded according to the coding in previous GLES cross-sectional studies. The other is the ISCO coding of occupational information according to ISCO88 and ISCO08.

Open-ended coding for the (second) most important problem is expected to be published in the fall of 2023.

5.4 PAPI Data

The preparation of the PAPI data is based in all respects on the structure of the CAWI survey. Questions that were asked differently in PAPI due to the mode (e.g., the question about voting decisions) are - as far as possible - modeled on the CAWI target variables at the variable level. The filtering from CAWI was also replicated so that the dataset generally follows the same filtering despite differences in the survey. If respondents selected more than one response option for single-answer questions, their answer was (for the time being) coded as "-73 multiple answers".

The following questions or question items were not included in PAPI and were therefore set to missing ("-91 mode") for the entire PAPI sample:

- Corona: Infection, no (Question Number: Nw609, variable q45a): Response option "no" is missing in PAPI. Individuals who made "-99 no answer" on question items q45b-d either refused to answer or did not indicate a Corona infection.
- Education: Profession (Question Number: T05.4, variables d8j1-j3, n): The PAPI questionnaire did not differentiate between university degrees (bachelor's, master's, etc., doctorate), but only generally recorded the possession of a university degree (d8j). The PAPI survey also did not include the option "Technical academy/vocational academy degree" ("Fachakademie-/ Berufsakademieabschluss".)

Since no technical time measurement could be performed in the PAPI mode, the PAPI questionnaire contains additional questions on time measurement that are not included in CAWI:

- Interview: Start, PAPI (intstart_p)
- Interview: Duration, complete, PAPI (intdur_p)
- Interview: Interruption (int5)
- Interview: End, PAPI (intend_p)

5.5 Regional Units

With the release of the dataset, users are additionally provided with some regional units that are not included in the questionnaire but relate to the place of respondents' residence. This includes the allocation to constituencies for the 2021 federal election (constituency number and name) (wknr), the federal state (bula) and the allocation to Eastern and Western Germany (ostwest, ostwest2).

5.6 Published Interviews

The following interviews are published for this release:

- 1) Verified target person
Target persons were verified by comparing the self-declared year of birth and gender with the information from the registration office. Only persons whose year of birth does not deviate from the information from the registration office (tolerance +/- 1 year) are published.
- 2) Interview completed before field end
Questionnaires from the PAPI survey were accepted and scanned even after 21.11.2021. All interviews where respondents indicated that they completed the interview after 21.11.2021 were removed from the sample subsequently.
- 3) Most completed interview in case of multiple participations
In the case of multiple participations of a person (after verification of the target person), the interview that contains more complete information (terminated later/fewer "no answer") is published.

4) Complete and partial interviews

Based on the recommendations of AAPOR (2016), interviews are classified as complete if more than 80 percent of all applicable questions are answered. Interviews in which between 50 and 80 percent of all applicable questions are answered are classified as partial interviews. Interviews in which less than 50 percent of the questions were answered are not published.

5.7 Variables in the Dataset

The GLES Post-Election Cross-Section 2021 dataset includes different types of variables. These comprise metadata, paradata, and substantive data, as well as contextual and weighting variables (see also sections 5.7.1 to 5.7.6. Table 2 provides an overview of the total number of variables in the dataset by variable type.

Table 2: Detailed Overview of the Number of Variables in the Dataset

Variable Type	Number
Metadata	6
Paradata	24
Contextual Variables	4
Weights	12
Substantive Data	541
Response Time Variables (additional dataset)	570
Total	1.157

5.7.1 Metadata

Metadata describe the dataset and its generation (Callegaro 2013) and include variables that are required for the archiving and distribution of the study (see Table 3).

Table 3: Metadata

Variable	Explanation
study	Provides the (ZA) study number of the dataset in four-digit format and the study number and title as value label
version	Dataset version, starting with 1.0.0
doi	Digital Object Identifier
field_start	First day of data collection field_end	Last day of data collection
sample	Name of the sample

5.7.2 Paradata

Paradata are recorded as a by-product of the interview process. They include, for example, time and date of data collection and interview duration (Callegaro 2013). Administrative information such as identification numbers, information on the participation status of respondents, and information on their assignment to groups based on content information or random-based procedures are also treated as paradata here. Table 4 provides an overview of paradata in the dataset.

If there is specific interest in additional paradata, their availability can be requested from the GLES team (gles@gesis.org).

Table 4: Paradata

Variable	Explanation
lfdn	A unique sequential identification number for the participants in the survey.
mode	Indicates whether respondents participated in CAWI or PAPI mode.
vpoint	Virtual Samplepoint
veri_flag	Indicates whether respondents show a deviation in the indication of gender.
intyear	Year of Interview
intmon	Month of Interview
intday	Day of Interview
intdate	Interview start date
intstart_c	Time of interview start, CAWI
intstart_p	Start time of interview, PAPI
intend_c	End time of interview, CAWI
intend_p	End time of interview, PAPI
intdur_c	Duration of whole interview session, CAWI
intdur_p	Duration of whole interview session, PAPI
intdate_flag	Indicates whether the start and end of the interview are on the same day.
intdur_cont	Duration of the interview of all substantial questions, CAWI
intdur_socio	Duration of the interview of all sociodemographic questions, CAWI
intdur_panel	Duration of the interview of questions to Willingness to Participate in the Panel, CAWI
intstatus	Share of completed interview questions (1 = complete (over 80 percent answered), 2 = partial (more than 50 and up to 80 percent answered), 3 = incomplete (50 percent or less answered))
intstatus_prc	see above, in percent
d5_flag	Indicates cases with implausible data on marital status in combination with age.
d8j_flag	Indicates cases with implausible data on higher education in combination with age
d17a_flag	Indicates cases with implausible data on periods of unemployment in combination with age.
d45_flag	Indicates cases with implausible data on the year of immigration in combination with age.

5.7.3 Contextual Variables

Contextual variables provide information about the regional context of respondents, e.g., the constituency and municipality in which respondents live.

Federal state

The variable bula indicates the federal state in which the respondents reside and is based on the information on postal code and place of residence.

East/West

The allocation to eastern and western Germany was made on the basis of information on the federal state in which the respondents reside. For the variable ostwest, all respondents living in Berlin are counted as East Germans. For the variable ostwest2, a differentiated assignment of Berlin residents to East or West Germany is made.

Assignment to Constituencies

The assignment to a constituency is based on the constituency division for the 2021 federal election and was made using the addresses. In municipalities that belong to only one constituency, the assignment was made by program; in large cities with several constituencies, the assignment was made manually.

5.7.4 Weights

The post-election cross-section contains two types of weights¹: a design weight and several adjustment weights.

The design weight (w_ow) corrects for oversampling of East Germany.

The second type of weights includes adjustment weights by socio-demographic and regional characteristics. Adjustment weights are calculated according to an iterative procedure ("iterative proportional fitting", IPF) (Deming/Stephan 1940). The basis for the adjustment weights are the distributions of gender (male, female), age (4 groups: 16-29, 30-44, 45-59 and 60 years and older), education (3 groups: low, medium, high), BIK regions (3 groups)² and East-West (for the weighting all Berliners were given East German weights)³. The weights will be adjusted to the marginal distributions of the Microcensus 2021.

¹ Detailed information on the selection and summary of the variables can be found in the Technical Report 2013|19 as well as in the GESIS Papers 2016|01 (Blumenberg et al. 2013; Blumenberg et al. 2016).

² The BIK region size classes classify the BIK region by their population size. Hereby, not the size of the municipality itself is reported but the size of the population in the area, in which the municipality is functionally integrated (see BIK-Institut Aschpurwis/Behrens (2001) for further information).

³ The adjustment weights were computed with the statistical software Stata using the Ado „ipweight“ by Michael Bergmann (2011). The described procedure is also applied in calculating the weights of the ANES (see DeBell et al. (2009)).

All weights are generated on the basis of the complete and partial interviews. The age of the respondents is taken from the data provided by the registration office. Missing values were set to the modal value of the distribution for the creation of the weighting variables.

Due to the mixed-mode design, the weights are available separately for the PAPI and CAWI samples as well as for the entire sample.

5.7.5 Substantial Data

Substantial data form the main component of the dataset. They include respondents' answers to the questions posed about attitudes, behavior and sociodemographics. The CAWI survey comprised 184 questions, the PAPI survey comprised 168 questions. The variables included in the dataset can be seen in the headers of the individual questions below.

5.7.6 Response Time Variables

The time measurement was screen-based within the CAWI survey. In addition to the information on the total survey time in the main dataset, the separate time variable dataset contains time stamps for each page viewed as well as information on the duration of the respondents for each question and the cumulative duration. The dataset provided contains three types of time variables: The first set of time variables identifies the time at which respondents left each page (example: "t15" for the time when the response to question q13 is completed). The second group of time variables indicates the response time in seconds screen-based. These variables are suffixed with "_d" in the variable name (example: "t15_d" for the time taken to answer question q13). The third group of time variables contains the cumulative time of a respondent that was needed to get to the respective point of the survey. These are marked in the variable name with the suffix "_dc" (example: "t15_dc" for the time taken to answer the questionnaire up to and including question q13). The last two types of time variables indicate the duration in seconds.

5.8 Sensitive Variables

Some of the variables cannot be made available as a direct download due to data protection regulations. As a rule, a data use contract must be concluded for these data before they are made available (off-site use). In exceptional cases, data access is restricted to on-site use. Further details can be found here. An overview of the data for restricted use and the access possibilities to this data can be found in the following Table 5. Data use is free of charge in both cases.

The data usage contract for off-site use is available in English and German. To gain access to the data, data recipients must fill in the data use contract properly and forward it to the GLES team. If you are interested in on-site use, please also contact the GLES team.

6.2 Version History of the Dataset

Changes between Version 2.0.0 (Full Release) and Version 2.1.0 (Full Release):

- Update of weighting variables and adjustment to the 2021 microcensus.
- Adjustments of variable and value labels.

Changes between Version 1.0.0 (Pre-Release) and Version 2.0.0 (Full Release):

- Correction of filter testing and reconstruction in the PAPI sample.
- Filter testing of open data.
- Additional dataset with time variables for the CAWI sample published. These are technically generated time stamps as well as calculated duration times per variable and cumulatively.
- Adjustments of variable and value labels.

Coding note: In 2009-2017, this question was also asked open-ended to the respondents. The information was provided orally and then recorded by the interviewers in coded form on an ad hoc basis on site. In this year's CAWI and PAPI modes, the open-ended information was provided by respondents in writing and coded later during data preparation. To make the data comparable, the written open-ended statements were coded analogously to the previous coding scheme (Values 1-5). However, because of the different mode, an additional code 6 had to be included in the scheme. The variables are coded as following:

- 1 Correct name, correct party
- 2 Correct name, wrong party
- 3 Correct name, no party
- 4 Wrong name, but party mentioned
- 5 Neither party nor name mentioned
- 6 No name, but party mentioned

Changes between this version of the questionnaire v1.0 and its previous version (Pre-release v0.2, 2021-09-30)

In contrast to the pre-release of the questionnaire v0.2, the questionnaire documentation provided here does not only contain the CAWI mode but offers a comparison of the CAWI mode and the PAPI mode. Mode-related differences thus become traceable. If there are significant differences in the query, this is indicated in the note of the respective question.
